Australia Study Visit Programme on Internationalisation management 19 - 26 May 2013

The Impact of globalisation has stimulated many governments and higher education institutions in Asia to start reviews of their higher education systems and undertake various reform strategies to strengthen their competitiveness, as well as sharing of expertise, in the regional and global contexts.

The development of internationalisation of higher education could be achieved through many mechanisms such as harmonisation of quality assurance and qualification frameworks, student and staff mobility, research collaboration, internationalisation of curriculum, and international collaborative projects.

SEAMEO RIHED and AEI cordially invite university executives in Asia to learn best practices from Australian government organization and leading HEIs in promoting and managing internationalisation of higher education. The 2nd SEAMEO RIHED—AEI Study Visit will not only provide opportunities for participants to interact and network with Australia's high ranking officials and senior higher education leaders but also Asian university executives in both formal and informal settings.
